There is no confrontation between the Judiciary and the Media. Our judiciary is fearless and our media should be mouthpiece of the country.

Media needs some kind of self-regulation and code of conduct whereas the Judiciary need not hyperactive. Both the pillars of the democracy should not

Aur Santulan' (Media & Judiciary: Boundaries & Balance), organised by Makhn Lal Chaturvedi National University of Journalism & Communication to mark 119th birth anniversary of Pt Makhn Lal Chaturvedi here on Friday.

Earlier, justice Dharmadhikari, while initiating the discussion, said, 'It seems that media wants to become ruler, as things gone very far. It crossed the Media trial and gone to Media Verdict and Media Punishment.'

He added, 'The judiciary is not that much strong in India and its procedure leads to delay.'

Outlook editor Alok Mehta said, 'It is because of high expectations from the media there is much noise is made otherwise everything has not lost.

Just don't look only Delhi's media because there are several regional papers, which are working with responsibility. Media is not supposed to control the government and should not make decisions that who will be Prime Minister or Chief Minister either. Media can not bring revolution but can make awareness.
